Housing the world's largest cemetery and concentration camp of its kind, Auschwitz became infamous after World War 2 as the most notorious of the Nazis concentration camps. Located nearby the provincial Polish town of Oshwiecim in Galacia it was established by order of Reichsführer SS Heinrich Himmler on 27 April 1940. The name Auschwitz has become symbolic of the Holocaust and the genocide of the Jews. It was at Auschwitz in 1941 that the chemical Zyklon B was used for mass killings on a daily basis and by mid-1942, mass gassing of Jews where extermination was conducted on an industrial scale. Walk into the original gas chamber and visit the museum.
